

Ms EB and Miss Moore's suggestions for Religious Studies A-Level transition...

Watch A History of Christianity documentary series by Diarmaid MacCulloch.

- This places a lot of our GCSE teaching in the correct historical order and overviews many of the big ideas in the Developments in Christian Thought side of the course. It's really well recorded and shows you many fascinating and beautiful places all over the world, some of which are no longer standing due to recent war and conflict in Syria and the surrounding areas.
- This is available online for free via Daily Motion if you use Google to search the title and "episode 1", 2, 3 etc. There are 6 in total.

- Click around too, you might find something useful for English Literature, French, Psychology, Sociology, Politics, History...

Study Why Religion Matters, Future Learn MOOC

- A MOOC is a Massive Open Online Course. This one is available for free via the Future Learn group. They give reading and videos each week to teach you something you – a little bit like home learning at the moment...! If you sign up then other learners on the course can see your profile, so you should ask someone at home for permission before you do this. Some MOOCs can be really tricky and very advanced, so don't worry if it goes over your head, you can always stop the course!
